Collaborative project with ADM

How 16 student groups helped campus cats

We joined hands with ADM (one of the world's largest nutrition companies), to launch another collaborative project helping to build animal friendly university campuses.

In April, 16 volunteer groups from different universities joined our project to submit their originally-made short videos to spread the message of encouraging students to stop buying and raising animals on campus, and to help those strays that are already there with TNR.

The whole project received over 15,000 responses on the internet.

Following the video competition, a total of 2 tons of cat food was awarded and distributed to the groups.

1,465 campus cats enjoyed this bonus bounty!
